GENEALOGICAL REGISTER OF THE DESCENDANTS OF HANS ADAM SONTAGH THE ANCESTORS OF MY GREAT-GRANDFATHER DANIEL SUNDAY, SR.

by Ralph W. Sunday, Chicago, Illinois

Within the last thirty-five years our national progress has brought our lives into the fastest moving pace in history that it seems we actually do not have time anymore to do the things we plan for ourselves. It also has affected the attendance of our family reunions in recent years, and before our large family of relatives become like strangers to each other, it is my desire through this genealogical record to restore something of our great history. It is through the life courage, the many hardships, toil, and prayer of our early ancestors that our very existence has become part of this wonderful era we live in today.

After considerable research at the Newberry Library in Chicago, along with valuable contributions received from my cousin, Rev. Orie E. Sunday, now living in Montoursville, Pennsylvania; John Layton Sunday of Philadelphia; and the facts uncovered by John H. Sunday of Washington, D. C., who before his death made a thorough study of the original records of all the Sunday families of Berks and Lancaster Counties in Pennsylvania and to whom we are indebted for much of the earlier genealogical information; also, the interested and obliging persons and relatives who have supplied information in respect to their families, I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation, I can now present this achievement.

Still much information is lacking, but in all, it is the best that can be presented at this time, and in all essential matters is correct and authentic. There are many other descendants starting from the second generation in America who I will not have the opportunity to cover, only those who have a direct connection with my great-grandfather.

In a three-volume publication entitled PENNSYLVANIA GERMAN PIONEERS by Ralph Beaver Strassburger, President of the Pennsylvania German Society, there is presented a most interesting history of German immigration to this country up to the year 1808. The trials and tribulations which attended the migration to the New World could also apply to the Sunday ancestors for the reason that the ships lists of arrivals include those bearing the name Sunday or the German equivalent. As is well known, William Penn was granted the land, known as Pennsylvania, by King Charles II of England, in liquidation of a debt of which the British crown owed to Penn's father. "In order to procure settlers for his land, Penn visited the Rhein provinces, whose once peaceful valleys, vine-clad hills had become the hunting ground of political and religious fanatics. Penn invited the Rheinlanders, and the suffering Palatines to found a State in which religious and civil liberty would prevail.

"The migration which followed was primarily from that part of the old German Empire known as the Palatinate, a section of the country lying along the Rhine River and the Southern part of Germany. At this time this section of the world was part of the Holy Roman Empire, and it was by reason of the religious and civil persecutions by the Church that many people sought freedom through migration.

"The journey to Pennsylvania fell naturally into three parts. The first, and by no means the easiest, was the journey down the Rhine to Rotterdam or some other port." Gottlieb Mittelberger in his JOURNEY TO PENNSYLVANIA IN THE YEAR 1750, writes: "The journey lasts from the beginning of May to the end of October, fully half a year, amid such hardships as no one is able to describe with their misery. The cause is that the Rhine boats from Heilbronn to Holland have to pass 26 custom houses, at all of which the ships are examined. The trip down the Rhine lasts therefore four, five and even six weeks.

"The second stage of the journey was from Rotterdam to one of the English ports. Most of the ships called at Cowes, on the Isle of Wight..... In England there was another delay of one or two weeks, when the ships were waiting either to be passed through the custom house or waiting for favorable winds. When the ships had for the last time weighed their anchors at Cowes, Deal or some other port in England, then the real misery began with the long voyage, for from there the ships, unless they have good wind, must often sail eight, nine, ten or twelve weeks before they reach Philadelphia.....

"The third stage of the journey, or the ocean voyage proper, was marked by much suffering and hardship. The passengers being packed very densely, like herrings, without proper food and water, were subject to all sorts of diseases.... Children were the first to be attacked and died in large numbers.... The terrors of disease were much aggravated by storms through which the ships and passengers had to pass. One commentator states that 'the misery reaches the climax when a gale rages for two or three nights and days, so that every one believes that the ship will go down to the bottom with all human beings on board. In such a visitation the people cry and pray most piteously' ...

"When at last the Delaware River was reached and the City of Brotherly Love was in sight, where all their miseries were to end, another delay occurred. A health officer visited the ship and, if any persons with infectious diseases were discovered on the ship, it was ordered to remove one mile from the city.....

"In none of the other ports of the American colonies, through which the German settlers entered, were lists of passengers prepared or preserved. Thousands of Germans came to America through the ports of Boston, New York, Baltimore, Charleston and Savannah, but whatever settlers came through these other ports, their names are lost at least in the large majority of cases, because no record was kept of them at the time of their arrival..... At the port of Philadelphia, of the 324 ships arriving between 1727 and 1775, we have the captains' lists of 138 ships."

The early immigrants to this country were very religious people, and strong in their faith. Having suffered many years the barbarous tortures of the Old World, these people found refuge in America where they might love and serve their God and maintain their attachment to a system of faith and order of worship which they would not conscientiously relinquish. Many were members of the Reformed and Lutheran Churches. Historians tell us that for many years there were few ministers, and that the services were conducted in German in private homes and in crudely constructed school houses. Later on, the churches were built mostly of hewn logs, and for some time were known as "Union Churches," being jointly used by several denominations. Any history that can be written of the older Sunday families, however brief, would not be complete without some recognition of the part the church played in their lives.

The Sunday migration started to America in 1736, according to the early records, and during the following thirty years there were six different Sonntags (or Sundays) either single men or their families with them, who landed at the port of Philadelphia. I have not found any record of what relationship they may have been to each other, if any, but with the majority there could have been some connection. By the time of the first census in 1790, there were close to a dozen Sunday families, most of them living in Pennsylvania.

Among the captain's lists from the records in Philadelphia there is one in particular that we will find most interesting.

List 88-A, gives the ship Snow Molly, with John Cranch as Captain, sailed from Rotterdam, last from Deal. The passengers were qualified on October 26, 1741. Among the passengers was Hans Adam Sontagh, age 27 years. There also appears, for this ship's passengers, a list 88-B, in which the spelling follows the original German and the name appears as Hann Adamm Sonntag. In those days people were not too careful about spelling. Records in the city of Reading show that he was the son of John Adam Sonntag, of Selchenbach in the upper Bailiwick of Lichtenberg in the Dutchy of Zweybruck, Germany. Upon his arrival or soon thereafter, he married Anna Elisabetha Paff, daughter of Valentine Paff, of Schwartzenehren in the Bailiwick of Lichtenberg, Germany.

In the same year, a tract of land comprising 248 acres was surveyed for Hans Adam Sontagh on the little Swatara Creek, one and a half miles due North of Rehrersburg, Pennsylvania, which was a section of the Richard Penn Manor. From 1741 to the year 1768, they are known to have resided in Tulpehocken Township, Berks County; from 1768 to 1790 they resided in Brunswick Township, Berks County, now Schuylkill County. Hans Adam Sontagh died in 1788 in Brunswick Township, but no grave markers can be found in the cemeteries in the locality in which he last resided. He was born in 1714. The first four children appear on the records of the Zion Lutheran Church (Blue Mt.) located a short distance from Strausstown, Pa. The fifth child was identified in an inventory of his estate, exhibited on August 13, 1790.

Their children are the following:

Joh-Jacob Sontag and Margaret Long

Joh-Jacob Sontag appears on the tax list of Brunswick Township, Berks County, in 1771, and again on lists of the same township for the years 1780, 1781, 1782 and 1784, the last year shows him as taxed for 50 acres, 1 horse, 1 cow and with 6 in his family. It appears that he lived with his father-in-law, Nicholas Long, or on a tract of land surveyed for him in Pinegrove Township for several years, as he is taxed in that township for the years 1774 and 1775. The U. S. Census of 1790 locates him near Lebanon, Pa. Jacob Sontag of Lebanon Township, Dauphin County, shoemaker, and his wife Margaret Long, are parties to a deed dated March 5, 1803, and recorded in Reading. From 1811 to 1818 on the records of Kimmerling's Church, N. Lebanon Township, then in Lebanon County, are found the names of Jacob Sonntag and his wife, Margaret Long, their son Jacob and his wife Elizabeth with five of their children, and other Sonntags.

Margaret Long's father, Nicholas Long, was of the Tulpehocken district. On June 20, 1763, the Proprietors issued a land warrant to Nicholas Long for 50 acres of land in Tulpehocken Township, Berks County. On the records of Zion Church (Blue Mt.) in upper Tulpehocken Township, Summer Hill Church in S. Manheim Township and Old Red Church in W. Brunswick Township are found the names of Nicholas Long, his children and his grandchildren. During the French and Indian War his house was used to quarter soldiers, and on Nov. 3, 1756 the Indians set fire to his house. On September 23, 1765 an order was issued for 150 acres of land in Pinegrove Township, Berks County, to Nicholas Long.

Jacob Sontag, Sr. served as an ensign, 3rd class, in Capt. Philip Hetrick's Company of Berks County Associators and Militia from 1779 to 1783. This would qualify him as a Revolutionary soldier.

The records of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, Lebanon, Pa., show the marriage of Andrew Sonntag to Elizabeth Brugh on Sept. 9, 1803. On the records of the Reformed Church at Schaefferstown, Pa., appear the notation of the baptisms of three children of Andrew and Elizabeth, and at the baptism of one named Margaret born Sept. 3, 1805, Jacob and Margaret Sontag (the grandparents) are sponsors.

Johann Adam Sontag and Andrew Sontag both came to Centre County, the first in 1901 and the latter in 1813, and lived in neighboring communities not more than twelve miles apart, and at this time my great grandfather was about four years old. The oldest residents of these communities testify that Johann Adam Sontag, who was a brother of Jacob Sontag and the father of Andrew, was commonly regarded as an uncle of Andrew and that Andrew addressed him as "Uncle Ad." This supplies one of the strong link of events which induced Andrew Sontag to come to Centre County to a location not far distant from his uncle.

"Uncle Ad" was a private in Colonel Craig's Detachment, commanded by Anthony Wayne. He was engaged in the siege of Yorktown and was present at the surrender of Cornwallis in 1781. His date of enlistment was in August 1781, but he was in the Army before that time acting as a hostler for Gen. Wayne until he was old enough for enlistment. Apparently, he was not more than 18 years of age at the close of the Revolutionary War. His other brothers Joh-Jacob and Joh-Herman were also Revolutionary soldiers. He married Elizabeth Minnich Dec. 1, 1789, daughter of a hotel keeper, Conrad Minnich, whose place was prominently mentioned in the Pennsylvania Archives, and located on the road leading from Reading to Shamokin, 3 miles south of Pottsville and 35 miles north of Reading. According to the tax lists in 1801, '02, '03, he was listed as a carpenter; in 1805 and 1806 he was assessed for 150 acres and one cow. Over the years it is said he acquired between 200 and 300 acres. As recorded in the Bellefonte Deed Book "S", page 290, he bought 175 acres of land from Peter and Elizabeth Auman. He was blind during his last years, and was the last Revolutionary soldier at the time of his death in Centre County, 91 years of age. His widow was granted 160 acres of bounty land by the Government Nov. 3, 1856. He died April 24, 1855.

Andrew always insisted that he would return to Berks County by which he meant the locality from which he came, but it was a desire he never realized. As early as 1813 his name appears on the tax lists of Haines, now Potter Township, Centre County. His name also appears on tax lists of Potter or Gregg Township as late as 1849 when, or soon thereafter, presumably he died. He and his wife are said to be buried in the Lutheran and Reformed Cemetery at Tusseyville, though no markers there, or elsewhere in the community can be found.

The only property which he owned while in Centre County was located in the ravine, or small valley, beyond the second mountain, called "Thickhead," in Fleisher's Gap near Colyer, a few miles South of Tusseyville, and is still known as the "Old Sunday Property." It seems that after the family had moved to Centre County, the name Sunday was adopted in preference to the original German. A deed recorded in Bellefonte (Book M, page 536) shows that Andrew Sunday, Sr., bought property consisting of four acres and ninety-one perches, likely with house and stable, from Andrew Gregg, Aug. 26, 1839 for which he paid $180.00, and on June 18, 1840, two sons of Andrew, John and Andrew, Jr. become owners of it; and they in turn sold it to George A. Stifler, of Dauphin County for $350.00. In the course of time the land became part of the adjoining farm, which after passing through many hands was owned by L. J. and Annie Treaster who bought it in 1921. At that time the foundations of the house (15 ft. x 20 ft.) and the stable remained, but the buildings were removed many years ago. Apparently, all previous dwellings which the family occupied were rented.

12. Solomon

No information has been found in Centre County regarding the children named Margaret, Jane, and Solomon, but as to the other children their family records are fairly complete. Since our particular group of relatives are descendants of Daniel and Catherine Sunday, I will continue now from this branch of the family.

Catherine Rinehart was the daughter of Frederick Rinehart (Rheinhart), who came to Centre County probably around 1804, since his name first appeared on the tax records in 1805, and each succeeding year until in 1829, when after his name is the word "Removed," which is the time he moved his family to a farm near Fremont, Ohio in Sandusky County. His wife's name was Deborah. They had a family of 12 children, the known names are: Catherine, Rebecca, Sarah, Louise, Margrate, George, Ann, and John who became a minister in the Evangelican Church and lived in Wisconsin. Margrate had 2 daughters and one son, Tom. One daughter married a Mr. Bunn, the other married H. G. Mulholland and lived in Florida.

Also, in Bellefonte, county seat of Centre County and in the assessment of Potter Township, it lists the name of Daniel for the first time in 1828, again in 1829 with the occupation as blacksmith; then in 1830 after his name is the word "Removed." From this information, he left Centre County probably that year when it is said he went West.

It can be assumed that Daniel knew the Fredrich Rinehart family well while they lived in Centre County, since Catherine became the wife of Daniel after he joined the Rineharts near Fremont, Sandusky County, Ohio. They probably lived with or close to the Rineharts, for they also followed them later on when they moved to Seneca County, about 1855. Daniel and Catherine then moved to Stuben County, near Angola, Indiana, and are buried there in Mt. Zion Cemetery; the Rineharts remained in Seneca County, and are buried in the Lutheran Church Cemetery 4 miles south of Republic, Ohio.

Daniel's brother, David, left Centre County around 1838-39, settled in the adjacent county from Daniel, in Huron County, near Monroeville, Ohio.

He had 5 sons: Emanuel, David, John, Daniel and William. You can find their descendants in Antwerp, Delphos, Richwood, Hicksville, etc., in Ohio; Fort Wayne, Wabash, Indianapolis, Auburn, in Indiana. The other son, John, left some descendants in Pennsylvania, others all around Berring Springs, Michigan; South Bend, Elkhart and a number of Indiana cities, including some in Illinois.

It is my hope that the future will bring about a closer relationship to one another in this large family of Sundays, that we may find greater happiness and enjoyment in becoming more united as a group, which will enable us as the years go by to uphold a rich heritage.

This chart has been produced from information supplied by my various relatives. Unfortunately, some needed facts are lacking in order to make a complete record at this time, such as birth and death dates, probably some names, and who married who. I hope anyone discovering a fact not recorded will have the kindness to report it to me, so that our Family Records may approach completion.

Additional copies of this chart, also the booklet of the "Genealogical Register of the Descendants of Hans Adam Sontagh" can be obtained by writing to
